

The Celiac Disease Center at Columbia University hosts the Development of Therapies for Celiac Disease

C O N F E R E N C E

► November 18-20, 2010

Faculty House at Columbia University
64 Morningside Drive
New York, NY 10027

This is a scientific program designed for those interested in the development of non dietary therapies for celiac disease including physicians, scientists, industry (pharmaceutical, diagnostic, biotechnology and food & agriculture) and investor/venture capitalists. The organizing committee consists of Joseph Murray, Ciaran Kelly, Stefano Guandalini and Peter Green.

You'll find information about registration, sponsorship, exhibits, sessions, speakers, descriptions of the events and activities, housing and our lineup of evening receptions online at www.celiacdiseasecenter.org.

We invite suggestions for presentations in both poster and oral presentation form for the session concerning pre clinical studies in the development of therapies for celiac disease. The organizers will choose whether presentations will be included. Email a brief abstract of your proposal to pg11@columbia.edu.

Sponsorship

The Sponsorship Program provides strategic opportunities for organizations to maximize corporate exposure with your target audience, reach scientific experts and industry leaders. Our sponsor benefits maximize corporate visibility (both pre-symposium and on-site) and are designed specifically for business-aligning your brand with your target audience.

Our sponsorship packages can include the following important benefits:

- Complimentary exhibit space
- Corporate messaging/logo placement
- On-site Promotional Signage
- Networking Receptions
- and more!

Please contact Cynthia Beckman at cb2280@columbia.edu or 212.342.4529 for sponsorship opportunities or visit us online at www.celiacdiseasecenter.org.

We appreciate your support and look forward to your participation.
